

BIOGRAPHY

Ron Przywara joined the Transforming U Seminars Abundance Team in 2004. He is primarily responsible for seminars and training in the information technology area and is also a subject matter expert in career choices and changes. He is responsible for IT Infrastructure Library (ITIL) and ITSM education for Transforming U's parent company, Veris Associates, Inc. He received his ITIL Foundations certification in 1998, and his ITIL Practitioner Certification in Change Management in 1999.

When Ron is the facilitator in the room, he captures his audience with solid presentation skills, humor, and an easy-going manner that brings even "stuffy" subjects alive. His background is primarily in information technology consulting and management, with a vast array of expertise in those areas, as well as being a dynamic, highly lauded front-of-the-room trainer and facilitator.

Ron's interest in Career Choices and Changes stems from having changed careers, and spending time determining what is best for him. From these experiences, he has helped others with their life and career change decisions as well. From the music world in his early rock and roll career, to information technology consulting to teaching and training, Ron is living proof that The CORE. Approach™ works and you CAN create the life you want!

Ron and Shannon have three daughters and live in New London, Pennsylvania, which is located in the rolling hills of Southern Chester County. With a personal mission statement that includes balancing work and family, Ron enjoys mountain biking and participating in his church music ministry as a percussionist.
